They Are Permitted to Make Two Runs-Baltimore, St. Louis, Athletics and Kansas City Winners of Association Games.

Three hundred people saw the Hoosier ball team practice with the Springfield, O., club at the park yesterday afternoon. The visitors started out apparently with the intention of winning the game, and the home players, being warm-hearted, generous young men, allowed that impression to prevail for three innings, but at that time they concluded to make things lively for awhile, and that they succeeded is evidenced by the appended score. A young man named Staib was in the box for the Ohio boys, and opened the contest with considerable assurance, but it was quickly knocked out of him by the Hoosier batsmen. The fun commenced mod-erately in the fourth inning, but in the next the outfielders of the visiting team were kent eutilelders of the visiting team were kept very busy chasing the ball around the outlying districts. After the fifth Captain Glasscock's men took things easy until the ninth, when they hammered the ball in a manner that made it very unpleasant and tiresome for all hands on the other side. The home players ran bases as they pleased, stealing second and third base at will. Daily stole home once while one of Rusie pitched the entire game for the local team, and did splendid work. The visitors could do nothing with his speedy delivery and struck at balls that they could not have reached with a boat oar. The crowd seemed to enjoy the sport, however, and when the visitors got two men across the plate in the eighth inning they were applauded in great style. The score:

The Opening Day's Programme. The Indianapolis ball team will play no more games until next Wednesday, when the regular League championship season will open on the home grounds, the Cleveland club being scheduled for this city on that and the three succeeding days. Extensive preparations are being made for the occasion, and if the day is favorable the opening promises to be an event of more than ordinary interest. The Cleveland club officials will all be here with the team, and the local management will make a special effort to entertain them, while Captain Glasscock and his combination will endeavor to make it pleasant for the Ohio aggregation, especially at the ball park between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The visitors will probably arrive Tuesday night. The present arrangement is to have a grand street parade, headed by a brass band, in which the players, in uniform, will take part, together with some of the club officials. The visitors will ride in open carriages, but Manager Bancroft has se-cured Frank Bird's tally-ho coach for the use of the home team, and the Hoosiers will head the parade in great style. There will be music at the grounds. Captain Glass-cock speaks hopefully of the result, and the players all feel that they will hold their own in

With the exceptions of Seery and Shreve, the men are all in good condition, and it is quite probable that the former will be able to take his place in left field on Wedneesday. While the latter is not seriously hurt, he will not be in form to pitch for several days. The club will not suffer from lack of pitching material, however, as Getzein, Boyle, Whitney, Burdick and Rusie are in excellent form.

Manager Bancroft has decided to put the first-named against the Clevelands in the opening game, with Buckley to catch his delivery. Getzein, himself, says he never felt better in his life, and ffeels that he can do some of his old-time work. Boyle and Daily will be the battery in the second game, but it has not yet been decided who will follow these two. Capt. Glasscock, together with all the players, recognize the importance of winning as many as possible of the first games played and a special effort will be made to get a good start. The public, however, should not expect too much of the Hoosiers. The poorest ball team in the country can sometimes win from the best and the Cleveland club There are some old-timers in the team, and as a whole it is a very good ball club. McKean, stricker, Radford, Faatz, Twitchell and Snyder are all men who know how to play first-class ball, and some of the young bloods have made good records. Bakely and Gruber are pitchers of recognized ability. The friends of the local nine must not expect to see the new League team defeated with the ease that the Hoosiers have eaten some of the minor organizations playing The Indianapolis club is an evenly-balanced team and ought to play good ball, but those who feel that it should win all or nearly all of the games played will be disappointed. It should be remembered that while Indianapolis has a good average nine, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburg, Washington and Cleveland also have good teams, some of them being much higher priced ought to complain if the Hoosiers are sometimes defeated by teams that the general public regard as inferior to them, and the fact that they will sustain defeats when it would be supposed that they should bring victory to their side, must not be lost sight of. The local players are all taking good care of themselves. Every man in the team manifests a desire to have the club make a creditable showing and is willing to do his best creditable showing, and is willing to do his best with that end in view. In short, the Indianapolis nine is starting out this season in better shape than ever before. Under the management of Mr. Bancroft, who seems to know and attend to his business, there is good reason for the belief that the club will represent Indianapolis in the League in a creditable manner and will hold a higher rank in the championship race than it has ever done. To encourage the team in the opening game there should be a large crowd at the park next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Spalding Satisfied.

While here with the base-ball tourists, last week, A. G. Spalding, of the Chicago club, had a long talk with President Brush in relation to the classification system. Mr. Spalding said that the first news he received of the new plan was very meager, and he at that time expressed the opinion that it was not a good thing and could not stand. Since he came home, however, and talked with his brother, who was friendly to the eystem, he had changed his mind, and assured President Brush that it would receive the support of the Chicago club. After looking into the plan thoroughly he was satisfied that it was a wise piece of legislation, and would be a benefit to base-ball generally. He thought that the players would eventually recognize the necessity of such a system, and would become perfectly satisfied with it; that it would be a good thing or everybody in the base-ball business could not be doubted, said Mr. Spalding. Mr. Brush, of course, was very much pleased to get Mr. Spald-

KANSAS CITY, 14; LOUISVILLE, 9. LOUISVILLE, April 20 .- Kansas City finished at Louisville to-day by winning the last of the series. Ramsey gave out at the end of the second inning, and was replaced by Ehret. Batting was heavy on both sides, with Louisville leading, but errors in which Esterbrook and Tomney led, lost the game. The feature of the game was Long's brilliant work at short. In the fourth, Hamilton, in coming to second, was struck heavily in the head by Shannon, and laid out. Hoover took his place. Hamilton will be laid up

Cincinnati, April 20.—The Cincinnatis outbatted the St. Louis in to-day's game, and had a half dozen chances offered them for winning the game, but luck was with the champions and they took their fourth victory from the Reds. Duryea, the Reds' new pitcher, occupied the points, and he held the visitors down to five hits, two of the number being on the scratch order. Holliday and Fuller excelled in fielding. Score:

Fourth Race—Purse; for three-year-olds and upwards; one mile. Strideaway was in front at the start, and the others well bunched, Castaway being fourth. They raced for the first half mile in this position, only that Castaway had moved up to second place, and as they ran around the upper end of the course Castaway challenged Strideaway, and when the homestretch was reached he was slightly in the lead. Coming home, however, Barnes let out a fink on Strideaway, and he nobly responded, shooting to the front and winning by half a length, with Castaway second, who was two lengths in front of Syntax, third. Time, 1:43.

It is composed of the following players: Ten Eyke, pitcher; Ber-ner, catcher; Miller, short stop; O'Harra, first; Sheets, second; Williams, third; Shilling, left field; Thomas, center, and Scudder, right. A St. Louis physician says: "I have made a study of soreness in the arms of base-ball pitchers, and the result has been interesting. I find that when the arms become sore at the elbow the matter is not serious. No one has yet succeeded in curing a bad shoulder, but I think I could do so. All the treatment thus far has been applied to the arm itself, and blistering, etc., has been tried without effect. I think that by treating the spine with electricity sore shoulders can be cured. The spine is unquestionably the seat of the trouble. I intend to make some experiments this summer which I think will be attended with good results."

THREE GREAT PERFORMANCES. Booth and Barrett's Closing Representations

Witnessed by Very Large Audiences. The Booth and Barrett engagement, at English's Opera-house, closed yesterday with "Ham-

Revenge" and "Garrick's Love" as a double bill for the evening. At both performances the attendance evinced the strong hold the great masters have upon intelligent and cultivated theater-goers in this community. It is no ordinary inducement that will bring out a matinee audience in this city such as that of yesterday, and the one of last evening was an equally hearty tribute of appre-ciation. Concerning Mr. Booth's Hamiet little that is new could be written. It was long since accepted by everybody as the truest inter-pretation of Shakspeare's broadest, deepest and most subtle character. Any variation of his conception of it seems a mistake, if not an impropriety. And so there is little to be added concerning his rendering of like some others, only grows more tender and touching with age.

In "The Fool's Revenge" and "Yorick's Love," Mr. Booth and Mr. Barrett have excel-lent facilities for exhibiting their indi-vidual methods of portraying passion and contrasting their representations of emotion. Both plays are full of intense dramatic action, so much so that one could wish some entertainment might be devised to intervene which would relieve the strain occasioned by the contemplation of their calamitous progress. As some one expressed it last evening, even a song and dance between them would help to relieve the con-the part, except that it is given with all the old-time finish and completeness—a picture which, tinuous study of their tragic horrors.

Of the company which supports the great tragedians in their present tour, it is the best that they have yet gathered to assist them. Miss Gale's Fiordeless and Mistress Alice left little to be wished, and Lawrence Hawley, Charles Collins and others of the support are scarcely less admirable in their parts than the principals they are selected to assist. The combination leaves to-day for Burlington, Ia., where it begins an engagement to-morrow

If the friends of Mr. O. R. Johnson continue to wish him good health and happiness at the rate they are doing at present he will be very robust by the time he reaches London. Another comimentary dinner was given in his honor at the New Denison last night "by his sorrowful fellow-members of the guild," which ranged all the way from blue points, through green turtle, black bass, frog legs, asparagus, spring chicken and green peas to Roquefort, with the accompanying condiments and lubricators. The literary feast was as noticeable as the gasronomie entertainment. The chairman, Mr. Harry S. New, acted as toast-master, and with "Buck's assistance," the several orators developed considerable eloquence. O. R. Johnson, the guest, responded to the toast, "Me and the Queen;" Colonel Millard spoke of a visit "To England in a Freight Car;" E. M. Dr. L. D. Waterman, member of the committee from the State Academy of Science to secure the meeting here, in 1890, of the American Asso-ciation for the Advancement of Science, calls at-tention to the fact that, the Board of Aldermen, City Council and Board of Trade having passed resolutions inviting the association to meet here, the $5,000 to pay the necessary expenses, as is usual, should be raised immediately. He suggests that this should be done so the State Academy of Science, at its next meeting, can safely extend the invitation to the association at its next meeting in August, at Toronto. It is necessary, he says, to call attention to the value to the city of this large annual meeting of scientific men for a week. If the city does not guarantee the association's expenses, the invitation will not be complete, and the meeting will go elsewhere.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Probable Suicide, but with Circumstances That Call for Thorough Investigation.

John B. Greenway, seventy-eight years of age, was found dead in his bed on the fourth floor of 1212 North Delaware street, between 10 and 11 o'clock last night. The dispensary physicians were called, but they will make no attempt to investigate the cause of death until to-day. The incidents surrounding the are not all known, owing to the fact that the man had spent the evening alone with his wife, his children being absent. According to the story of his son, Robert Greenway, he came in early after supper and remarked that he was going to spend the evening at home, as he was very tired.

"I didn't see him," he said, "for some time after that, until I came in myself, about 10 o'clock, as near as I can remember. My father was lying on the bed, dead, and my mother said he had taken remember. he had taken morphine. They never have lived a happy life together, for they were always quarreling over some trivial thing, and I have heard my father say that unless matters were bettered he would take his own life. He has often shown tendencies to commit spicide and I think he at last found an commit suicide, and I think he at last found an opportunity. On a chair near the bed was found a paper labeled oxalic acid, and also some black powder, but the doctors took it away with them. There was no one in the room except my mother at the time, but none of the occupants of this floor say that they heard any noises as if a dispute was going on. However, that is no proof, for they have heard so many quarrels that they have eased to pay attention any mor"

The son's statement was corroborated by that of a daughter, and from them only could these partial facts be ascertained, as Mrs. Greenway, who is sixty-five years of age, was in another apartment and refused to be questioned relative to her husband's death. The history of the family has been one replete with domestic broils and troubles. Greenway was formerly a cobbler, but some time ago he was behind the check-room counter at the Bates House. One ago last Wednesday he quit and since that time has been doing nothing. He had occupied rooms on the fourth floor of the building, where he was found, for some time, and there he would receive visits from his children. When found he had two scars on his head, one diagonally across the forehead and one on the back of the neck, which, though suspicious in their character, were said to have been caused by a fall he had received while intoxicated. His body was taken in charge by Girton and an examination will be made to-day. The deceased was the father-in-law of patrolman Giblin.

Henry G. Pearson died at 4:20 this morning. | near this city early in the week... Rev. Charles Little, of the Presbyterian Church, will pass his Ex-Postmaster-general Thomas L. James brought the news of Mr. Pearson's death to to the postoffice early this morning, and then entered upon the duties of his son-inlaw, pursuant to the action recently taken by Mr. Pearson's bondsmen, delegating the powers of the office to him. His first act was to send a telegram to Postmaster-general Wanamaker, apprising him of the death. At the bedside of the deceased were Mrs. and Miss James, Mrs. Chulbeck, Charles D. Freeman, of Henry Clews & Co., and Thomas L. James. Mr. Pearson' death was from hemorrhage, caused by can-cer of the stomach. He had been in a comatose state from 11 o'clock yesterday morning until he died. He was forty-five years of age. His death occurred on the thirteenth anniversary of his wedding. He leaves a widow, but no children.

Mr. Pearson was born in New York city about forty-seven years ago. While he was yet a boy he was employed in the customnouse. Then he was appointed a clerk in the postoffice. He was in the railway mail service in the branch running between New York and Washington. He was a good clerk and was highly commended by the superintendent, George S. Bangs. He was transferred to the main branch of the department, where he remained until 1873, when when Mr. James, who had been made Postmaster, made him his assistant. When Mr. James was made Postmaster-general by President Garfield, he appointed Mr. Pearson postmaster. Pearson married a daughter of Mr. James about 1875.

of the Exchange. DENVER, April 20 .- Dr. W. F. Wilson, who i sidered one of the most talented oculists in the country, and certainly without a peer in the Rocky Mountain regions, died late last night from an overdose of morphine. Mr. Wilson had been suffering for some time with insomnia, and took the drug to produce sleep. He evidently miscalculated the amount. The Weldon Extradition Bill. OTTAWA, April 20.-In the Commons, to-day, on Sir John Thompson moving to transfer Mr Weldon's bill to extend the extradition act to government offenders, Mr. Lauriersuggested that, as the details of the measure would create considerable discussion, it be not passed at this late stage of the session. Sir John Macdonald said there was grea moral impatience on the part of the people of Canada to put an end to the influx of rascality from the United States. Cynics might say we had enough rascality of our own, but it was well to tell the world that we don't want either these people or their ill-gotten gains. He thought the bill so unobjectionable that it would meet with little opposition, but if its details were likely to lead to protracted debate, it would then remain

Sir John Macdonald pointed out that both England and Canada were anxious to enlarge the list of extraditable ofienses, and that whatever delay had occurred in this direction was due to the action of the American authorities. He thought this bill could only take effect by proclamation, but held that by passing it a great moral object would be gained, as Canada would thereby inform England and the United States that she was anxious to have the extradition treaty enlarged. It would have a beneficial ef-fect by informing United States defaulters that Canada would not harbor them an hour if she could prevent it. He thought that the details of the measure could be made acceptable to the House by an informal discussion rather than by a set debate.
